This is a detailed topographic map of a section of Minnesota, likely from a historical or cadastral record. The map features a prominent grid system with horizontal coordinates numbered 1 through 30 and vertical coordinates labeled XVI down to I. The terrain is characterized by several large lakes, including May Lake at the bottom center, Little Mayo Lake to its north, and various other smaller lakes scattered throughout. A network of roads and railroads is depicted, connecting different parts of the landscape. Land parcels are delineated with boundaries, many of which are accompanied by numerical values representing acreage or survey identifiers. Notable labels include 'ROWLAND' and 'NORWAY BAY' in the upper right quadrant, and 'MAY LAKE' prominently in the lower center. The map also shows some industrial or mining areas, such as 'CHILD'S MINES'. The overall appearance suggests it was used for land management, surveying, or legal purposes.
